

KIDS' ACTIVITY PACK PARTY LIKE IT'S 1999

Affordable
Art Fair

MARVELLOUS MEMPHIS

We're reminiscing about the first ever Affordable Art Fair back in 1999, when everything was full of big bold shapes and colours. Have a go at colouring in the fun shapes on this page!

SPECTACULAR STREET ART

Image above: I fell off my pink cloud with a thud, Tim Fowler, StudionAme, 2019, Acrylic, Spray Paint and Gloss on Canvas, £950

Graffiti isn't just something you get in trouble for doing at school during your lunch break. The '90s saw the realisation that it should be seen as fine art, led by Bristol street artist Banksy. Using Tim Fowler's work as inspiration (exhibited with StudionAme), have a go at creating your own street art masterpiece on the wall below.

'90s FASHIONISTA

Let your imagination run wild by carefully cutting out the clothes and accessories, to create your very own '90s kid. Why not colour in the clothes to make them your own!

BUILDING A TIME CAPSULE

In 2019 we celebrated our 20th birthday at the fair and wondered what things we might find in a time capsule from the '90s. Can you draw some things in the jar that you would put in a time capsule from today? After that, you could even make a real one at home!

THE AGE OF THE UNEXPECTED

The '90s saw a lot of change in the art world with lots of artists moving away from traditional painting and thinking about what else art could be. Artists like Damien Hirst (exhibited at the fair by Manifold Editions) displayed a shark in a tank, and 1999 was the year of Tracey Emin's iconic unmade bed (which you could even recreate at home...) If you could display anything as art, what would it be? Why not draw it on the plinth below!
